TEUTONIC FORCES NEARING CAPITAL

More Than Two Million Austro-Germans on Front.

CZAR'S FORCES ARE SEPARATED

German Advance Toward Lemberg Continues and Russians Are Expected to Evacuate Any Time. French Reclaim Lost Ground.

London, June 23.—With the heavy guns of the Austro-German allies turned on Lemberg and within range, the fall of the Galician capital is looked for at any time confidently by Vienna and Berlin, and with apparent resignation by those observers in London and Petrograd who have been following closely the trend of events.

More than 2,000,000 Austrians and Germans have been operating along the front, almost encircling Lemberg, and, with the Russian withdrawal behind the Brodek lines, the evacuation of Lemberg as a base was accomplished.

That the complete evacuation of Lemberg without much resistance is probable is indicated by Petrograd dispatches declaring that such a movement cannot be avoided "without a sacrifice of men out of proportion to the strategic importance of the place."

Two Russian Armies Separated. Latest advices from Austrian headquarters, describing the Russian retirement, assert that the two Russian armies, which for a long period were fighting with an unbroken front, have been separated and cannot effect a junction on the Galician side of the Russian frontier.

The infantry attacks to the north of Arras, France, have temporarily come to an end, but there has been an artillery action of great violence in the neighborhood of Souchez and Ecurie. French artillery have located and opened fire with their heavy batteries on the German long-range gun, which had thrown twenty-nine large shells into the town of Dunkirk in the past two days.

GERMANS MAKE ADVANCES IN ALSACE

Berlin, June 23.—"An attack by the enemy on the western bank of the canal, to the northwest of Dixmude, against three hamlets occupied by our troops, has been repulsed," says an official statement issued here.

"North of Arras there was nothing more than artillery fighting. An attack by French infantry at a point south of Neuville was repulsed at midnight.

"In the Champagne district, to the west of Pertuis, we pushed forward our positions after successful mining operations. In the hills of the Meuse hand-to-hand fighting lasted throughout the day. It was accompanied by heavy artillery fire. We began a counter attack and cleared our trenches almost completely of all the French soldiers who had penetrated them. We took 130 prisoners.

"An advance of the enemy at Marcheville in small numbers was easily repulsed. East of Lunville there have been further engagements between advance posts near Leintrey.

"The battle to the north and to the west of Lemberg continues. To the east of Zolkiew the Russians were forced during the night to retreat from their positions."

FRENCH SUCCEED IN REGAINING LOST GROUND.

Paris, June 23.—The following official statement was issued by the war office:

"In the region to the north of Arras the German counter attack came to an end toward morning. During the day there has been only an artillery action of extreme violence between Souchez and Ecurie.

"In Champagne, near Pertuis, the enemy exploded several mines without result. On the heights of the Meuse at the Calonne trench, the Germans toward the end of the night made a violent attack for the purpose of recovering the positions which they had lost.

"They succeeded only in occupying part of their second line. A counter-attack on our part resulted in almost all of it again falling into our hands.

"The number of prisoners taken in that region since June 20 has reached 220 men and three officers.

"Near Marcheville, in the Woivre, a feeble German attack—half a company—which had as its object the re-occupation of an abandoned trench between the two lines, was dispersed by our fire.

"In Lorraine a German counter-attack, debouching to the east of Liéntry, was stopped by our artillery. In

SANITY OF THAW PUT BEFORE JURY

Seventh Attempt at Freedom Makes Rapid Progress.

New York, June 23.—Harry K. Thaw's seventh attempt to gain his freedom since his arrest, nine years ago this month for the murder of Stanford White, was begun here with the selection of a jury to inquire as to his sanity. If the jurors decide in his favor Thaw will obtain permanent release from the Matteawan insane asylum, where he was incarcerated after being acquitted of murder at his second trial and from which he escaped in 1913.

The selection of the jury occupied the entire session of the court, but its completion in one day was regarded as rapid progress when compared with the time it took to fill the jury box on the two previous occasions on which Thaw had faced a jury.

Among the state's witnesses probably will be William Travers Jerome, prosecutor of Thaw at the previous trials. Thaw said after the jury was completed that he was entirely satisfied with it.

STILL GUARD SLATON'S HOME

But Officials Expect No Further Demonstrations From Crowds.

Atlanta, Ga., June 23.—State troops continued to guard the suburban home of Governor Slaton, but quiet prevailed there and in the city.

Albany, N. Y., June 23.—Martin T. Manton, attorney for former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, pleaded in private for nearly two hours for the life of his client, who has been condemned to die during the week of July 12 for instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The governor said, however, that he would confer with Mr. Manton again next week, when it is expected the formal application for executive clemency will be made.

The governor also announced that he would see Mrs. Becker, wife of the condemned man "or anybody else in his interest that may come to Albany."

New York, June 23.—Confirmation of the much discussed French credit by American bankers was received when J. P. Morgan & Co. announced the virtual completion of a one-year loan to the Paris branch of the Rothschilds, the latter acting for the French government and the Bank of France, as well as a syndicate of French bankers.

The amount of the loan and its interest yield are yet to be determined, but it is intimated that the sum is not likely to exceed $50,000,000 at approximately 5 per cent.

It will be secured by collateral in the form of high grade American railway bonds, to be placed with Morgan & Co. These bonds include some of the senior securities of America's premier roads, of which many millions of dollars' worth are owned by French investors.

Winonians Save Village.

Winona, Minn., June 23.—Threatened with destruction by fire residents of Minnesota City appealed to Winona for assistance. One company of the fire department responded, traveling six miles to attack the flames which had destroyed three dwellings. The Winona firemen, in spite of the lack of water pressure, succeeded in saving the town hall and other buildings.

SCARED THE KING; WIFE GETS DIVORCE.

Fort Scott, Kan., June 23.—Mrs. Mary Pipe was granted a divorce here from Harry D. Pipe, on her allegation that she received undesired publicity when her husband made his way into Buckingham palace in London, several months ago, and frightened the British king and queen.

MEXICAN INDIANS TAKE TO WARPATH

Mayo Tribe Sacks Town of Los Mochis.

REASSURANCES FROM YAQUI

New Element Adds to Terror Across the Border—Admiral Howard Has Co-operation of General Leyva at Guaymas.

VILLA DENIES BREAK. El Paso, Tex., June 23.—General Francisco Villa issued a statement at his headquarters in Augas Calientes, in which he positively declared there had been no split between himself and General Felipe Angeles. Villa added that he had commissioned Angeles to inspect cannon he contemplated purchasing.

Nogales, Ariz., June 23.—Mayo Indians, who have followed the example of the Yaqui in Sonora, Mex., sacked Los Mochis, Sinaloa, according to J. B. Taylor, manager of a sugar company owning land in that section, who telegraphed to the secretary of state at Washington asking for protection.

Governor Jose Maytorena, Villa commander in Sonora, reinforced the censorship in the entire territory dominated by him. Censors were placed in the telegraph offices. Newspaper men were denied admission to the governor's offices.

YAQUI CRISIS CHECKED.

Washington, June 23.—Reassuring advice concerning the situation in the Yaqui valley, Mexico, where Indians have been threatening American settlers, came to the navy department from Admiral Howard at Guaymas.

Earlier in the day Admiral Howard reported holding a conference with General Leyva, commandant at Guaymas, who, while advising Americans to leave the Yaqui valley, said he had 1,500 Sonora state troops ready to operate against the Indians and protect foreigners whether they remained on their properties or left the country.

BURNING OF HOSPITAL IS STILL UNCONFIRMED.

El Paso, Tex., June 23.—Officials here continue their efforts to verify the report of the burning of a military hospital and from 200 to 300 wounded inmates in Chihuahua. The report was brought here by passengers, who said that no one was permitted to board the train at Chihuahua.

WAR BETWEEN FORCES OF CARRANZA HALTED.

Douglas, Ariz., June 23.—Internal warfare between the infantry and the artillery of the Carranza garrison at Agua Prieta was prevented Sunday by General Calles, who placed himself between the opposing forces about to line up for a skirmish and appeased the wrath of the would-be belligerents, according to word received here.

CRUISER ORDERED TO HAITI

The Washington With 700 Leaves Vera Cruz.

Washington, June 23.—Rear Admiral Caperton with his flagship, the armored cruiser Washington, was ordered from Vera Cruz to Cape Haitien to relieve the marines landed there last week by the French cruiser Descartes, to preserve order. The Washington carries 500 bluejackets and 200 marines available for shore duty.

Haiti is turbulent again, as the result of the recent overthrow of President Sam—the Little Republic's eighth executive in seven years—by revolutionists under Dr. Resolvo Bobo. Reports to Washington told of shooting in the streets of Cape Haitien and of the killing of natives charged with pillaging.

DEMAND SUNDAY CLOSING

Seven Hundred Citizens of Racine Present Petition to Mayor.

Racine, Wis., June 23.—The first gun of a fight to close the saloons on Sunday was fired when 700 citizens marched to the city hall and presented petitions containing 5,000 signatures to Mayor Thiessen. The mayor said that he was elected on an open town platform and that before he would make known his stand he felt it is only fair that opponents of a closed town should be heard.

The Vanishing Road.

We are all treading the vanishing
road of a song in the air, the vanishing road of the spring flowers and the winter snows, the vanishing roads of
the winds and the streams, the vanishing road of beloved faces. But in this great company of vanishing things we
feel that there is a reassuring comradeship. We feel that we are the units in
a vast ever moving army, the vanguard of which is in eternity. The road still stretches ahead of us. For a little while yet we shall experience
all the zest and bustle of marching
feet. The swift running seasons, like cavaliers bound for the front, shall still
find us on the road, and shower on us
in passing their blossoms and their snows. For a while the murmur of the running stream of time shall be our fellow wayfarer—till, at last, up there
against the sky line, we, too, turn and
wave our hands, and know for ourselves where the road winds as it goes to meet the stars. And others will stand as we today and watch us as we disappear, and wonder how it seemed
to us to turn that radiant corner and vanish with the rest along the vanishing road.—From "Vanishing Roads,"
by Richard Le Gallienne.

Siberian Signal Men.

It is probable that nowhere save in Siberia are convicts employed in any
service pertaining to the operation of railways. In that place of exile there are many "good conduct" men, who
spend their lives in little huts along the line of railway, always a vast apart, whose duty it is to signal with green flags that the road is clear. At night they signal with a green lamp.
If the traveler stands between the railway cars at midnight he may flick
off the green lights as the train slips
along. Away down the black avenue
will appear a tiny green speck. As
the cars proceed this speck will become
larger and larger, and finally the figure
of a man holding up the lamp is distinguishable in the darkness. And there are thousands of these men along the line. A signal started today in Moscow runs for eleven days, until it
is broken on the banks of Lake Balkal,
beyond Irkutsk.—Minneapolis Journal.

Hard Water.

Do you realize how hard water is
when a boat sails through it at full speed? Water passing at fifty miles an hour is not the limpid liquid we are accustomed to bathe in. If you put your arm overboard from a hydro-
plane running fifty miles an hour and
strike a wave crest the probability is
that you will break your arm or wrist,
because at that speed the water has
not time to give or even to change
shape, and striking it is like striking
so much metal.

If a swordsman should enter one of the great hydraulic quarries, where a stream of water under enormous head
is used to wash down hillsides, and attempt to cut into one of those streams
his sword would fly in pieces without being able to penetrate the water. The stream is like a bar of iron.

Queer Postage Rates.

The city of Christobal, in the canal
zone, is separated from the city of Colon, in the republic of Panama, by
a street only. One side of the street is in one city, the other side in the other
city. A boy or girl living in Christobal
can for 2 cents send a letter all the way to New York, or, farther yet, to San Francisco. Or if he wants to send
it a long, long way a two cent stamp
will carry a letter from Christobal to Alaska or Hawaii or Guam or even halfway around the world to the Philippine Islands. But suppose that boy
or girl wants to send a letter across
the street to some friend in Colon.
How much postage must he use?
Why, 5 cents, of course! It doesn't seem quite right, does it?—St. Nicholas.

It Certainly Was.

"And you are afraid of the dark Tommie?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"But there's nothing in the dark to
hurt you."
"Well, what's pop limping around
for?"
"Oh, he fell over a chair when he came home late last night."
"Well, that was in the dark, wasn't
it?"—Youkers Statesman.

IN DISTRICT COURT

Judge B. F. Wright Hears Many
Court Cases—Orders Entered
in the Court Records

In the district court Judge B. F.
Wright is hearing many court cases.
The case of August Johnson vs. Lars
O. Gudgdal, et al, was first continued
as per stipulation on file, and later
the whole of it was dismissed without prejudice to either party and
without costs to either party.

In the case of J. A. Schultz vs H.
K. Dimmick, the jury found for the plaintiff, and assessed his damages at $145.21 with interest at 6 per cent from July 24, 1914.

In the case of Joe Miran vs John Liljedahl, a stipulation for dismissal
has been placed on record.

The court heard the case wherein
an injunction was prayed restraining
the school board of independent district No. 51 from paying for certain lands to be used as school
grounds because the same had been marked on plats as "Reserved" for such purposes, by the owners of the townsite. The judge ordered briefs
to be filed and will decide the case
later.

The Grocer's Euphemism.

"Why is it that the berries at the bottom of your boxes are always so much smaller than those at the top?"
asked Mrs. Newlywed.
"Ah, madam," said the grocer, "you don't put it quite correctly. You should ask why the berries at the top of the box are so much larger than those at the bottom."—Judge.

The Wasp.

It is said that the male wasp does
not sting, but as the male and female
wasps wear the same kind of poison
and look as much alike as twins the only way to distinguish their sex is to catch one. If it stings it is a female;
if not, it is a gentleman wasp.

Cossacks as Riders.

When crossing rivers the Cossacks,
to avoid getting wet, throw the left
stirrup leather across the saddle and
the right stirrup leather in the opposite direction. Then, placing their feet in the reversed stirrups, they stand upright.

COUNSEL AND CLIENT.

A Lawyer's Right to Defend a Prisoner
He Knows to Be Guilty.

Ought an advocate to defend a prisoner whom he believed to be guilty?
Mr. Justice Darling in a case in which
a solicitor was the plaintiff made some observations on this trifling problem which ought not to go unrecorded. He protested, says the London Globe,
against the notion that a lawyer,
whether barrister or solicitor, was under
an obligation to cease to conduct a case which he realizes to be bad.

"If an advocate in the course of a trial for murder comes to recognize
that his client is guilty is he," asked
the learned judge, "to say to the court,
'Hang my client?' Judges have seldom asked about the ethics of advocacy in open court. It was, however,
in a considered judgment in the court
of exchequer that Baron Bramwell
made his famous contribution to the discussion.

"A man's rights," said the baron,
"are to be determined by the court, not
by his advocate or counsel. It is for want of remembering this that foolish
people object to lawyers that they will
advocate a case against their own opinions. A client is entitled to say to his counsel: 'I want your advocacy, not your judgment. I prefer that of the court.'" Mr. Justice Darling, in the jargon of the courts, concurs.

Laymen have usually been readier
than lawyers to discuss the ethics of
advocacy. "What do you think of supporting a cause you know to be bad?"
Everybody knows Dr. Johnson's reply
when Boswell asked him this question.
"Sir, you do not know if it is good or bad till the judge determines it."

Less generally known is Sydney
Smith's contribution to the discussion.
"Justice is found experimentally to be
most effectually promoted by the opposite efforts of practiced and ingenious
men presenting to the selection of an
impartial judge the best arguments
for the establishment or explanation
of truth. It becomes, then, under such an arrangement the decided duty of
an advocate to use all the arguments
in his power to defend the cause he
has adopted and to leave the effects of
those arguments to the judgment of others." This was said in an assize sermon the famous wit preached at York in 1824.

Spider's Web.

Efforts to utilize the spider's web for
practical purposes were made as early
as 1710 in France.

The Primary Fact About War.

We sometimes think that the distinguishing characteristic of war is the
killing and maiming of men, but it is evident that this is not the real distinction, for men are killed and maimed in time of peace. The essential and the one marked difference is this, that
during war a nation is a society,
whereas in peace it is an aggregate of
individuals. So true is this, indeed,
that if a denizen from some other
world acquainted with our normal activities during peace should visit us
when we are at war he would have
difficulty in recognizing in this smoothly moving, harmonious unit the disorganized welter of yesterday. Compared with the spirit that animates a society at war, the disintegration that inevitably ensues when the sword is laid aside is in all practical respects
like the dissolution which sets in in
the body of a man when the spirit has taken its flight.—"The World Storm-
and Beyond," by Edwin Davies Schoon-
maker, in Century Magazine.

The Black Hole of Calcutta.

If the prisoners in the famous "black hole" had been as well informed as modern scientists there would have been no such death rate as actually
occurred. The men died of suffocation and panic. Modern discovery has shown that air can support life if it be
kept in motion, even though it has but
a small amount of oxygen in it.

If the prisoners in the notorious dungeon had therefore formed a mass and
revolved around and around at a pace
that would have been easy to keep up
not only would the contained air have
been stirred up, but each man on the outside of the revolving mass would
have had his face presented periodically
to the small window.

In fact, in the light of recent discovery the same incarceration could now
take place without the loss of a single
life—that is, provided the men were reasonably strong and healthy.—Every Week.

Nature.

Nature is a mystery. The wondrous old sphinx provokes us in a thousand ways to ask questions of her, but she gives us no answer to the questions.
We don't know what nature is. "Nobody knows."—New York American.

Knew Him.

"Yes, I'm anxious to get my daughter off my hands, I'll admit."
"Then why don't you let her marry me?"
"What good would that do?"—Cleveland Leader.

The Interest In This June Sacrifice

KEEPS UP AT FEVER HEAT AT KOOP'S

Suits—Dresses—Coats—Waists—Skirts—Underwear—Hosiery and Summer Wash Goods are the wonder values of this week's offering—See our windows for the goods and price—Every price on our Red Dodger "WHALE OF A SALE" is here for your choosing tomorrow—but the terrific selling of the past few days will surely close out some of the good things—Better come to L. The Vanishing Road.
We are all treading the vanishing
road of a song in the air, the vanishing road of the spring flowers and the winter snows, the vanishing roads of
the winds and the streams, the vanishing road of beloved faces. But in this great company of vanishing things we
feel that there is a reassuring comrade-
ship. We feel that we are the units in
a vast ever moving army, the van-
guard of which is in eternity. The road still stretches ahead of us. For a little while yet we shall experience
all the zest and bustle of marching
feet. The swift running seasons, like
cavaliers bound for the front, shall still
find us on the road, and shower on us
in passing their blossoms and their
snows. For a while the murmur of the running stream of time shall be our
fellow wayfarer—till, at last, up there
against the sky line, we, too, turn and
wave our hands, and know for ourselves where the road wends as it goes to meet the stars. And others will stand as we today and watch us as we
disappear, and wonder how it seemed
to us to turn that radiant corner and
vanish with the rest along the van-
ishing road.—From "Vanishing Roads,"
by Richard Le Gallienne.

IN DISTRICT COURT
Judge B. F. Wright Hears Many
Court Cases—Orders Entered
in the Court Records

In the district court Judge B. F.
Wright is hearing many court cases.
The case of August Johnson vs. Lars
O. Gudgdal, et al, was first continued
as per stipulation on file, and later
the whole of it was dismissed with-
out prejudice to either party and
without costs to either party.

In the case of J. A. Schultz vs H.
K. Dimmick, the jury found for the plaintiff and assessed his damages at $145.21 with interest at 6 per cent from July 24, 1914.

In the case of Joe Mirau vs John
Liljedahl, a stipulation for dismissal
has been placed on record.

The court heard the case wherein
an injunction was prayed restraining
the school board of independent district No. 51 from paying for certain lands to be used as school
grounds because the same had been
marked on plats as "Reserved" for
such purposes, by the owners of the
townsite. The judge ordered briefs
to be filed and will decide the case
later.

Siberian Signal Men.
It is probable that nowhere save in Siberia are convicts employed in any
service pertaining to the operation of
railways. In that place of exile there
are many "good conduct" men, who
spend their lives in little huts along
the line of railway, always a verst
apart, whose duty it is to signal with
green flags that the road is clear. At night they signal with a green lamp.

If the traveler stands between the railway cars at midnight he may tick
off the green lights as the train spins
along. Away down the black avenue
will appear a tiny green speck. As
the cars proceed this speck will become
larger and larger, and finally the figure
of a man holding up the lamp is distinguishable in the darkness. And
there are thousands of these men along
the line. A signal started today in Moscow runs for eleven days, until it
is broken on the banks of Lake Balkal,
beyond Irkutsk.—Minneapolis Journal.

Hard Water.
Do you realize how hard water is
when a boat sails through it at full speed? Water passing at fifty miles
an hour is not the limpid liquid we are accustomed to bathe in. If you put your arm overboard from a hydro-
plane running fifty miles an hour and
strike a wave crest the probability is
that you will break your arm or wrist,
because at that speed the water has
not time to give or even to change
shape, and striking it is like striking
so much metal.

If a swordsman should enter one of
the great hydraulic quarries, where a
stream of water under enormous head
is used to wash down hillsides, and attempt to cut into one of those streams
his sword would fly in pieces without
being able to penetrate the water. The stream is like a bar of iron.

Queer Postage Rates.
The city of Christobal, in the canal
zone, is separated from the city of Colon, in the republic of Panama, by
a street only. One side of the street is
in one city, the other side in the other
city. A boy or girl living in Christobal
can for 2 cents send a letter all the way to New York, or, farther yet, to San Francisco. Or if he wants to send
it a long, long way a two cent stamp
will carry a letter from Christobal to Alaska or Hawaii or Guam or even
halfway around the world to the Philippine Islands. But suppose that boy
or girl wants to send a letter across
the street to some friend in Colon.
How much postage must he use?
Why, 5 cents, of course! It doesn't seem quite right, does it?—St. Nicholas.

It Certainly Was.
"And you are afraid of the dark Tommy?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"But there's nothing in the dark to
hurt you."
"Well, what's pop limping around
for?"
"Oh, he fell over a chair when he came home late last night."
"Well, that was in the dark, wasn't
it?"—Youkers Statesman.

COUNSEL AND CLIENT.
A Lawyer's Right to Defend a Prisoner
He Knows to Be Guilty.

Ought an advocate to defend a prisoner whom he believed to be guilty?
Mr. Justice Darling in a case in which
a solicitor was the plaintiff made some observations on this familiar problem
which ought not to go unrecorded. He
protested, says the London Globe,
against the notion that a lawyer,
whether barrister or solicitor, was under
an obligation to cease to conduct a case which he realized to be bad.

"If an advocate in the course of a
trial for murder comes to recognize
that his client is guilty is he," asked
the learned judge, "to say to the court,
'Hang my client?' Judges have seldom asked about the ethics of advocacy in open court. It was, however,
in a considered judgment in the court
of exchequer that Baron Bramwell
made his famous contribution to the
discussion.

"A man's rights," said the baron,
"are to be determined by the court, not
by his advocate or counsel. It is forward of remembering this that foolish
people object to lawyers that they will
advocate a case against their own
opinions. A client is entitled to say to
his counsel: 'I want your advocacy, not
your judgment. I prefer that of the court.'" Mr. Justice Darling, in the
jargon of the courts, concurs.

Laymen have usually been readier
than lawyers to discuss the ethics of
advocacy. "What do you think of supporting a cause you know to be bad?"
Everybody knows Dr. Johnson's reply
when Boswell asked him this question.
"Sir, you do not know it to be good or bad till the judge determines it."

Less generally known is Sydney
Smith's contribution to the discussion.
"Justice is found experimentally to be
most effectually promoted by the opposite efforts of practiced and ingenious
men presenting to the selection of an
impartial judge the best arguments
for the establishment or explanation
of truth. It becomes, then, under such
an arrangement the decided duty of
an advocate to use all the arguments
in his power to defend the cause he
has adopted and to leave the effects of
those arguments to the judgment of
others." This was said in an assize
sermon the famous wit preached at York in 1824.

The Wasp.
It is said that the male wasp does
not sting, but as the male and female
wasps wear the same kind of poison
and look as much alike as twins the
only way to distinguish their sex is to
catch one. If it stings it is a female;
if not, it is a gentleman wasp.

Cossacks as Riders.
When crossing rivers the Cossacks,
to avoid getting wet, throw the left
stirrup leather across the saddle and
the right stirrup leather in the opposite
direction. Then, placing their feet in
the reversed stirrups, they stand up-
right.

Spider's Web.
Efforts to utilize the spider's web for
practical purposes were made as early
as 1710 in France.

The Primary Fact About War.
We sometimes think that the distinguishing characteristic of war is the
killing and maiming of men, but it is evident that this is not the real distinction, for men are killed and maim-
ed in time of peace. The essential and
the one marked difference is this, that
during war a nation is a society,
whereas in peace it is an aggregate of
individuals. So true is this, indeed,
that if a denizen from some other
world acquainted with our normal activities during peace should visit us
when we are at war he would have
difficulty in recognizing in this smoothly moving, harmonious unit the disorganized welter of yesterday. Compared with the spirit that animates a society at war, the disintegration that previously ensues when the sword is
laid aside is in all practical respects
like the dissolution which sets in in
the body of a man when the spirit has
taken its flight.—"The World Storm-
and Beyond," by Edwin Davies Schoon-
maker, in Century Magazine.

The Black Hole of Calcutta.
If the prisoners in the famous "black
hole" had been as well informed as
modern scientists there would have
been no such death rate as actually
occurred. The men died of suffocation and panic. Modern discovery has shown that air can support life if it be
kept in motion, even though it has but
a small amount of oxygen in it.

If the prisoners in the notorious dun-
geon had therefore formed a mass and
revolved around and around at a pace
that would have been easy to keep up
not only would the contained air have
been stirred up, but each man on the
outside of the revolving mass would
have had his face presented periodically
to the small window.

In fact, in the light of recent discovery the same incarceration could now
take place without the loss of a single
life—that is, provided the men were reasonably strong and healthy.—Every Week.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

HERE'S ANOTHER PHILIP NOLAN.

You remember Philip Nolan, the "Man Without a Country"—how he, a young army officer, cursed his country, the United States, and said that he wanted never to hear of it again; how he was condemned by court martial to be taken aboard a United States man-of-war and to cruise about until the end of his days, never hearing mention of his native country until he lay on his deathbed. "He loved his country as no other man has loved her," he wanted placed on his tombstone, "but no man deserved less at her hands."

Well—

We have among us another Philip Nolan. This individual appeared the other day at the office of the chief naturalization examiner in Chicago, stated that he was a native born American citizen, of American parentage, and wanted to "resign."

"Why do you desire to resign?" asked the examiner.

"Because there is too much religion and too little fighting spirit in this country, and what I want is to be scratched off," replied the man, who is described in the dispatches as "the long haired, wild eyed applicant for the distinction of becoming a 'man without a country.'"

There's something amusing about this tale, but there's also food for reflection in it.

When the rest of the world is hurrying back to barbarism by the gunpowder route and we Americans are shocked beyond expression by tales of wholesale killing and maiming and burning, here's an American who is disgusted because we do not follow the same road.

Too little fighting spirit, when Europe lies bleeding, struck down by that same fighting spirit! Let us thank heaven that we have no "fighting spirit" to drag us into the war.

And too much religion!

Strange complaint in this day and generation, when the clergymen, best fitted to judge of such matters, complain of empty pews and half filled churches. Where did this man get the idea that we have too much religion?

With all due allowance for the unaccountable ways into which the normal human mind may wander, it is hard to resist the conclusion that this candidate for expatriation is not sane.

Surely—

In the present state of the world American citizenship is a precious jewel, to be cherished and guarded with all care and not thrown away because America has "too little fighting spirit and too much religion."

The Man Who Snores.

If there is any one who should be "rapped in slumber" it is the man who snores.

Care of the Baby In Summer

Bottle Feeding.

[Prepared by the children's bureau, United States department of labor.]

The first and most important thing to do for a baby is to find the right food for him. When for any reason he is deprived of the one "right" food, his mother's milk, some substitute must be found. Experience in feeding many thousands of babies in this and other countries has shown that clean, fresh cow's milk is the only food that can be depended upon to take the place of breast milk with even a fair degree of success.

In order to have milk that is clean enough for a baby's food, the greatest care must be taken to keep it clean from the time it is drawn from the cow until it goes into the baby's mouth. If a cow is kept on the place it should be possible for the mother to see that the cow is brushed clean before being milked, that the teats and udder are washed before the milking begins, that the hands and clothing of the milker are clean and that a partly covered milk pail is used, which has been scalded with boiling water before use.

It is sometimes advisable to boil the milk, especially in hot summer weather. Usually the method of treatment called pasteurization renders it safe. Here is a simple method of pasteurizing:

Put a gallon of water over the fire in a large kettle. When the water is boiling hard remove the kettle and let it stand uncovered for ten minutes. Stand the filled and corked bottles in the hot water, cover the kettle and allow it to stand for half an hour. Remove the bottles and cool them, under running water if possible, until they are cold, and keep them on ice or where they will be cold until needed.

Perfect cleanliness must be observed in making up the baby's feedings. The mother's hands should be washed clean, and she should wear a clean apron. All the dishes and articles to be used should have been boiled before being used, and as far as possible they should be kept for the baby's use alone. Milk is very readily tainted by being put into dishes in which food has been cooked. If convenient have on hand a kettle large enough to hold eight nursing bottles at a time, a two quart bowl or pitcher to hold the milk mixture, a funnel through which to pour it into the bottles, a long handled spoon to stir it with, a bottle brush, enough nursing bottles and nipples for all the nursings in twenty-four hours, and the same number of new corks. A graduated measuring glass is a convenience, but a nursing bottle having a scale in ounces blown in one side may be used instead.

It is most important that the bottles shall be kept cold from the time the milk is prepared until it is used. Here is a cheap and effective icebox:

Use a hard or candy bucket or a wooden box for the outside receptacle. In the bottom put a layer of sawdust an inch thick. In the middle of this box place an eight quart tin pail with a cover and fill all the space around it with sawdust. Inside this pail put the ice and the bottles and cover both the inner pail and the outer box. If the ice is broken up and put into a small covered pail which is set inside the refrigerator it will keep longer than when it is not thus protected. If the outer box has a cover on hinges, as will be most convenient, a thick layer of newspapers may be tacked to the underside of the cover. Or a cushion stuffed with hay, straw, excelsior or sawdust, made to fit the cover of the box, may be fastened to it. If properly made this little device will keep the baby's bottles sweet for twenty-four hours with very little ice, provided they are very cold when put in.

When it is time to feed the baby take one of the bottles out of the icebox and put it in a small pail or pan of water over the fire to heat. The water should come up to the milk line on the bottle. Do not make the milk too hot. The mother may test the heat by sprinkling a few drops on the inner surface of her arm; when it feels just comfortably warm to her skin it will be right for the baby.

After the feeding is finished, remove the bottle at once and empty out any milk that may be left. Rinse it with cool water and leave it filled with water. At some convenient time wash the bottles with warm soap and water using the bottle brush to scrub them clean inside. Rinse thoroughly and put them over the fire to boil. The kettle used for pasteurizing may be used for this purpose. The water should cover the bottles and they should be boiled for fifteen minutes. They may stay in the water until the feedings are made up. Wash and boil the corks at the same time.

To clean the nipples, wash and scrub them in warm soapy water. A little common salt rubbed on the inside will remove the milk. Rinse well and drop them into boiling water for five minutes. They will dry with their own heat when removed and should be put away dry. In a dry glass jar, which has been boiled with the bottles, cover the jar and keep it out of the light. Handle the nipples only by the lower edge, and never by the top, which is to go into the baby's mouth, and guard especially against flies, which like nothing better than to swarm over the baby's bottle and nipple. If this happens, put on a fresh nipple before feeding the baby. Flies are a deadly enemy to humanity.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

HERE'S ANOTHER PHILIP NOLAN.

You remember Philip Nolan, the "Man Without a Country"—how he, a young army officer, cursed his country, the United States, and said that he wanted never to hear of it again; how he was condemned by court martial to be taken aboard a United States man-of-war and to cruise about until the end of his days, never hearing mention of his native country until he lay on his deathbed. "He loved his country as no other man has loved her," he wanted placed on his tombstone, "but no man deserved less at her hands."

Well—We have among us another Philip Nolan. This individual appeared the other day at the office of the chief naturalization examiner in Chicago, stated that he was a native born American citizen, of American parentage, and wanted to "resign."

"Why do you desire to resign?" asked the examiner.

"Because there is too much religion and too little fighting spirit in this country, and what I want is to be scratched off," replied the man, who is described in the dispatches as "the long haired, wild eyed applicant for the distinction of becoming a 'man without a country.'"

There's something amusing about this tale, but there's also food for reflection in it.

When the rest of the world is hurrying back to barbarism by the gunpowder route and we Americans are shocked beyond expression by tales of wholesale killing and maiming and burning, here's an American who is disgusted because we do not follow the same road.

Too little fighting spirit, when Europe lies bleeding, struck down by that same fighting spirit! Let us thank heaven that we have no "fighting spirit" to drag us into the war.

And too much religion! Strange complaint in this day and generation, when the clergymen, best fitted to judge of such matters, complain of empty pews and half filled churches. Where did this man get the idea that we have too much religion?

With all due allowance for the unaccountable ways into which the normal human mind may wander, it is hard to resist the conclusion that this candidate for expatriation is not sane.

Surely—In the present state of the world American citizenship is a precious jewel, to be cherished and guarded with all care and not thrown away because America has "too little fighting spirit and too much religion."

The Man Who Snores.

If there is any one who should be "rapped in slumber" it is the man who snores.

Care of the Baby In Summer

Bottle Feeding.

The first and most important thing to do for a baby is to find the right food for him. When for any reason he is deprived of the one "right" food, his mother's milk, some substitute must be found. Experience in feeding many thousands of babies in this and other countries has shown that clean, fresh cow's milk is the only food that can be depended upon to take the place of breast milk with even a fair degree of success.

In order to have milk that is clean enough for a baby's food, the greatest care must be taken to keep it clean from the time it is drawn from the cow until it goes into the baby's mouth. If a cow is kept on the place it should be possible for the mother to see that the cow is brushed clean before being milked, that the teats and udder are washed before the milking begins, that the hands and clothing of the milker are clean and that a partly covered milk pail is used, which has been scalded with boiling water before use.

It is sometimes advisable to boil the milk, especially in hot summer weather. Usually the method of treatment called pasteurization renders it safe. Here is a simple method of pasteurizing:

Put a gallon of water over the fire in a large kettle. When the water is boiling hard remove the kettle and let it stand uncovered for ten minutes. Stand the filled and corked bottles in the hot water, cover the kettle and allow it to stand for half an hour. Remove the bottles and cool them, under running water if possible, until they are cold, and keep them on ice or where they will be cold until needed.

Perfect cleanliness must be observed in making up the baby's feedings. The mother's hands should be washed clean, and she should wear a clean apron. All the dishes and articles to be used should have been boiled before being used, and as far as possible they should be kept for the baby's use alone. Milk is very readily tainted by being put into dishes in which food has been cooked. If convenient have on hand a kettle large enough to hold eight nursing bottles at a time, a two quart bowl or pitcher to hold the milk mixture, a funnel through which to pour it into the bottles, a long handled spoon to stir it with, a bottle brush, enough nursing bottles and nipples for all the nursings in twenty-four hours, and the same number of new corks. A graduated measuring glass is a convenience, but a nursing bottle having a scale in ounces blown in one side may be used instead.

It is most important that the bottles shall be kept cold from the time the milk is prepared until it is used. Here is a cheap and effective icebox:

Use a lard or candy bucket or a wooden box for the outside receptacle. In the bottom put a layer of sawdust an inch thick. In the middle of this box place an eight quart pail with a cover and fill all the space around it with sawdust. Inside this pail put the ice and the bottles and cover both the inner pail and the outer box. If the ice is broken up and put into a small covered pail which is set inside the refrigerator it will keep longer than when it is not thus protected. If the outer box has a cover on hinges, as will be most convenient, a thick layer of newspapers may be tacked to the underside of the cover. Or a cushion stuffed with hay, straw, excelsior or sawdust, made to fit the cover of the box, may be fastened to it. If properly made this little device will keep the baby's bottles sweet for twenty-four hours with very little ice, provided they are very cold when put in.

When it is time to feed the baby take one of the bottles out of the ice-box and put it in a small pail or pan of water over the fire to heat. The water should come up to the milk line on the bottle. Do not make the milk too hot. The mother may test the heat by sprinkling a few drops on the inner surface of her arm; when it feels just comfortably warm to her skin it will be right for the baby.

After the feeding is finished, remove the bottle at once and empty out any milk that may be left. Rinse it with cool water and leave it filled with water. At some convenient time wash the bottles with warm soap and water using the bottle brush to scrub them clean inside. Rinse thoroughly and put them over the fire to boil. The kettle used for pasteurizing may be used for this purpose. The water should cover the bottles and they should be boiled for fifteen minutes. They may stay in the water until the feedings are made up. Wash and boil the corks at the same time.

To clean the nipples, wash and scrub them in warm soapy water. A little common salt rubbed on the inside will remove the milk. Rinse well and drop them into boiling water for five minutes. They will dry with their own heat when removed and should be put away dry, in a dry glass jar, which has been boiled with the bottles. Cover the jar and keep it out of the light. Handle the nipples only by the lower edge, and never by the top, which is to go into the baby's mouth, and guard especially against flies, which like nothing better than to swarm over the baby's bottle and nipple. If this happens, put on a fresh nipple before feeding the baby. Flies are a deadly enemy to humanity.

Heavy Death Toll Reported at Calexico—Fires Threatening El Centro Said to Be Under Control—Wires Are Down and Entire Valley Is in Darkness.

FLAMES PERIL EL CENTRO.

San Francisco, June 23.—Advices from El Centro, Cal., by long distance telephone said that between ten and fifteen persons were killed by falling walls caused by the earthquake, which occurred about 9 a. m. At 10 p. m. the report said, two large fires, which had threatened the town, were under control, but lesser conflagrations still were burning.

Los Angeles, June 23.—Several deaths are reported at Calexico, a town on the Mexican boundary line, as a result of an earthquake. Fires are reported to have started in some places. The extent of the damage is unknown. The telegraph and telephone wires were put out of commission. The high school at Brawley, a few miles north of El Centro, is said to have been destroyed by the shock. Considerable damage was reported at El Centro.

Two Shocks at Brawley. Later reports received here from the Imperial valley state that two distinct shocks were felt at Brawley and as far east as Yuma, Ariz., on the Mexican border. The first shock occurred at 8 p. m. and continued for about a minute. The second shock, which occurred an hour later, lasted forty-five seconds.

Several fires are reported to have been started at Calexico, where the shocks were more frequent and severe. It is reported.

Explosion After Quake. The first shock caused an explosion near the Holton Power company at El Centro. One building was burned to the ground and other damage done.

Reports from the stricken district are meager and it is difficult to get information because of the interruption of telephone and telegraph communication.

The entire Imperial valley, comprising several hundred square miles, is in darkness.

WHAT WAR MOVES MEAN

Reports circulating in London that as soon as Galicia is restored to Austro-Hungary the Germans will begin a new offensive in France and Belgium are probably untrue. The most important objective before Teutonic allies at the present time is to lessen the number of their foes. It is utterly inconceivable that either Great Britain or France will ever agree to a separate peace; and Italy has come too recently into the war to think of getting out of it. But there are several possible circumstances under which Russia might be willing to agree to peace, and for this reason it has become the paramount strategic aim of the Germans to realize these circumstances.

To abandon the offensive against Russia, therefore, after the Slavs are driven from Galicia, would be to give up the attempt to wring a peace treaty from the czar just when success begins to seem possible.

If the Germans limit their desires in the east simply to the recovery of Galicia, and thereafter begin a new concentration in France, the operation most probably will signify that German lines in the west are in danger of breaking. But if the German battlefield in France and Flanders is holding as well in fact as it is in appearance, and if there is no secret weakening, it is improbable the Germans will give the Russians any respite.

The czar's troops are now in a sorry plight. The huge numbers of captures constantly being made by the Germans show that the Russian morale, never of the best, is fast vanishing, along with the scarcity of munition supplies. If Galicia must be evacuated and the last hold of the enemy's territory surrendered, profound pessimism must begin to prevail among the Russians, and much of this spirit surely will make itself felt among the czar's advisers.

If the terrible driving power of General von Mackensen's armies relentlessly continues, desperation and panic may appear at Petrograd.

In the years before the present war began, the Kaiser exerted an almost hypnotic influence over the czar. The Kaiser's headquarters are now at the Galician border, and his presence is becoming associated with the victory which the Germans seem bound to win in Galicia. It is not by any means impossible that the mystic temperament of the Russian autocrat may before long carry him back to the ranks of the Kaiser's admirers.

Von Bernstorff's Witness is Held for Perjury

Gustav Stahl

When Ambassador von Bernstorff, representative of Germany in the United States called on President Wilson the other day, much was made of the visit. It turned out later that he hadn't much more to do than to present some affidavits to prove that the Lusitania, which was sunk by a German submarine, carried guns.

At once an investigation of the affidavits makers was ordered. Secret service men had a hard time to find Gustav Stahl, who had sworn that he had visited the Lusitania and seen guns on her.

When the chase became too hot, the head of the secret service of the Hamburg-American line disclosed his hiding place in Albany. He was taken before the United States Grand Jury in New York. There he was asked about his affidavit, and he loudly announced he had seen guns on the Lusitania. Just as he was arrested on a complaint sworn to by an assistant United States attorney. He was locked up in the historic Tombs.

While Stahl was waiting in the marshal's chamber in the Federal Building, in New York after his arrest, for the arrival of Edward Sanford, a lawyer, who had been assigned to act as his counsel, he was asked, through an interpreter:

"Would you be willing to spend twenty years in jail or your fatherland?"

"Make a hundred!" he replied, in German, and then broke into a hearty laugh.

Spots on the Sun.

Strictly speaking, spots on the sun are not spots, because they are shifting in form and of changing duration in particular localities. Scientists do not account for them definitely, but they are supposed to be floating masses of gaseous matter, enough lighter than the main body of the sun to form obscuring shadows on its surface. Of whatever material they are composed they belong to the sun. They are never entirely stationary or quiescent, but form and reform continually. "The length of their life," says a scientist, "is difficult to assign, because there is some tendency for a new group to arise where an old one has disappeared, but one is recorded which appeared on the same place for eighteen months. The average is perhaps two months. They play some part in the magnetic action of the sun, but it is not known what."—Philadelphia Press.

A Hint to Golfers.

If there is one part of the game more than another that is likely to try the golfer's patience to the utmost it is putting. When we consider that half of the game of golf is on the putting green is not this a good reason why we should be proficient at it? But how are we to overcome this weakness on the greens?

The only real sound theory that is known for putting is to swing your putter on a dead straight line through the ball toward the hole. You can practice this method by putting the end of the putter head close up to a wall and practice swinging your putter back and forth. A pendulum movement is best, keeping the end of the putter close to the wall. Try it and see if it does not help your holing out.—Outing.

An Old English Law.

At one time railways in England were prohibited from carrying persons going to a prizefight.

The Listener.

Years ago some one said that "a good listener is preferred to a poor talker." And every one who has observed good listeners or listened to poor talkers have come to the conclusion that the fellow knew what he was saying.

There is quite as much art in listening as there is in talking. Simply to remain quiet does not signify that one is listening. To listen means to pay attention. It implies that one is learning something. It is in the line with the words of the wag concerning the owl, which runs something like this:

A wise owl lived in an oak.
 The more he heard the less he spoke;
 The less he spoke the more he heard.
 Why are we not like that wise old bird?
 —Dayton News.

Fathoms Deep.

The boy yawned over his geography. "How deep is the ocean?" he inquired, pointing to the center of the Pacific.

"Thousands of fathoms, my son—thousands."

"Well, how much is a fathom?"

"A fathom is—er—are you looking at the Pacific? Well, your Uncle Karl years ago was shipwrecked in the Pacific, and the pirates came out after him, and the cannibals—but I'm too busy now to tell you the story. Run along to bed."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Goats In Switzerland.

In Switzerland if a boy plagues a goat he may be fined and sent to jail. If a person meets a goat on a path and drives the animal aside he may be arrested. If a goat enters the yard of a person not its owner and is hit with a club or stone the person guilty of the offense must pay 30 cents. If the engineer of a railroad train sees a goat on the track he must stop the train until the animal can be coaxed away.

The remark is frequently made that i will be to the interest of Brainerd to vote against county option. Just the reverse is the case.

If Brainerd voters should contribute to the defeat of county option they will vote decidedly to their disadvantage economically as well as morally. ¶ Brainerd is "dry" for two years, nothing can alter this even should county option fail, it will not affect Brainerd.

As Brainerd contributes to the cost of all court proceedings the taxpayer who votes against county option votes for higher taxes.

If county option carries and Brainerd remains dry for three years nothing will be able to cause the voters to vote it back. ¶ Crow Wing County has had saloons for some thirty-five years and they have not been satisfactory. Why not try a dry county for three years and find what the practical result will be. ¶ It is evidently satisfactory elsewhere and will be here—CROW WING COUNTY OPTION LEAGUE.

DEMOCRATS FEAR A PARTY BREAK

Will Bryan's Followers Support the President?

COMPARED TO G. O. P. SPLIT

Political Sharps Say the Democrats Will Divide Just as the Progressives Left the Republican Fold—Speculation as to Whether Peace Advocate Will Be Candidate For President.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 23.—[Special.]—Political sharps and those whose vision may not have that character are trying to see a parallel between the Taft-Roosevelt break and the Wilson-Bryan break. They say the future results will be the same, only the parties being reversed. But it will be some time before we know whether Bryan's followers will be loyal to him or whether there is any considerable element in the Democratic party averse to Wilson.

It should be remembered that a large body of the Republican party, including men in congress and others prominent in politics, were openly opposed to Taft during the first year of his administration on account of the tariff, and the division continued to grow for one cause or another, reaching a climax on the Canadian reciprocity agreement. No such division is apparent in the Democratic party.

Follow the Man in Power.

Politicians and party men generally want to follow the man in power. They do not break with a president unless they can help it. It takes strong reasons to make any man break away from his party. It does not appear that Bryan has given such strong reasons, not enough to carry the rank and file with him.

There is another consideration, however, about this rank and file. There may be thousands and millions of them who do not care much about the president one way or another. The men who give expression to opinions are the politicians and the newspapers interested in politics as a matter of course. Suppose there is a large element in the Democratic party that is more interested in Bryan than in Wilson and which cannot give voice to its opinion at this time? In that case Bryan could make a great deal of trouble for the president.

Advantage of the Primary.

In case Bryan decides to run for the presidency against Wilson he will have one advantage that Roosevelt did not have in 1912. The primary system is more widespread now than three years ago, and the rank and file can express their preferences by votes. Heretofore the man in power has possessed all the advantage. He had the active politicians with him, and these manipulated the caucus, the convention and every other system and gave delegates to the man in power, the man who appointed them to office.

But it is still a long way to a contest between Wilson and Bryan, for Bryan may fool everybody and not be a candidate.

Helping the Sailors.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona has helped the sailors, or perhaps beaten them to it, in giving a nickname to the big Dreadnought Arizona. The senator came east to be present at the launching of the ship bearing the name of his state and called her the Gila Monster, the term applied to a reptile in Arizona which is very dangerous. That name will stick, as sailors like nicknames for ships, such as the "Ark" for the Arkansas, "South Sea" for the South Carolina, etc. The gila monster is a most unpleasant reptile, and, by the way, instead of a hard "g" he has the Spanish pronunciation of the letter, which makes him the "heela monster."

Interest in Hughes.

The hundreds of visitors who go into the courtroom are more interested in Justice Hughes than any other member of the supreme court. More ask which justice is Hughes, and the lawyers who are in constant attendance give more attention to Hughes when he is handing down an opinion than they do to any other justice. One day after Justice Hughes had rendered a lengthy opinion a man remarked to former Senator Bailey, who had been in the court:

"You have just listened to an opinion by the man who may be the next president."

"He would make a good one," replied Bailey, "and if he is nominated he will be elected."

The World a Kindergarten.

"We learn through the eye," remarked former Senator Root one day when developing the importance of demonstrating to the people certain facts. "The world is a kindergarten. What people see impresses them more than what they hear. The moving picture is more potent than the public speaker. Whenever the government wants to impress the people it should endeavor to place before them facts in the plainest possible terms, so that they may see and know. If the moving picture or other demonstration is unavailable then the printed page should be plain and intelligent."

Good For Something.

He called the waitress over to his table and in a whisper said:
 "Er-r, these eggs?"
 "Yes, sir."

"Excuse me, miss, but it seems almost a crime."

"What do you mean, sir?"
 "Why should I, a big, strong man, in robust health, with the glow of youth pervading my system—why should I attack this venerable couple?"

"Do you mean those eggs ain't good?"
 "Oh, no, no! Far be it from me to make such an accusation. They may be good. I trust they are, but not for eating purposes. Do you get me?"

She did, and she also got an order of real eggs.—Boston Record.

Dogs of War.

The "dogs of war" have been more than a figure of speech for thousands of years. They were used in Egypt 400 B. C. The Romans, the Teutons and other fighting nations of antiquity depended much on them for sentinel and defense purposes. In the middle ages they are said to have even worn armor. The Spanish discoverers used bloodhounds in tracking the Indians in this country.

Rare Modesty.

"Bilkins has been a passenger on some of the largest ships afloat."
 "Is that his sole claim to distinction?"
 "No, indeed. What makes Bilkins unique is the fact that he didn't apparently become an intimate friend of all the prominent people on board those ships."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Sycamore.

One of the most durable woods is sycamore. A statue made from it, now in the museum of Ghent, at Cairo, is believed to be nearly 6,000 years old. Notwithstanding this great age, it is asserted that the wood itself is entirely sound and natural in appearance.

There Are Others.

"I thought I was brave, but I had an experience this morning with a man that made me lose my nerve."
 "Dear me! Who was he?"
 "My dentist."—Baltimore American.

Just a Query.

Reggie—What's the time, old chap? I've an invitation to dinner at 7, and my watch isn't going. Gus—Wasn't your watch invited, too, dear boy?—Boston Transcript.

Suet.

To keep suet fresh chop roughly and sprinkle with a little granulated sugar.

A Mistake Made by Many

When you suffer pains and aches by day and sleep disturbing bladder weakness by night, feel tired, nervous and run down, the kidneys and bladder should be restored to healthy, strong and regular action. It is a mistake to postpone treatment. Foley Kidney Pills put the kidneys in sound, healthy condition and keep them active and strong. H. P. Dunn, Druggist.—Adv't.

Squaring the Account.

The Central Law Journal says that a Philadelphia tailor was shocked over the size of the bill rendered by a lawyer he engaged to sue a customer, and later when the lawyer bought a suit of clothes the tailor retaliated by sending him a bill in the following legal terms: "To measuring and taking order for one suit, $4.50; warrant and instructions to foreman for executing same, $3.35; going twice to cloth merchant, $2.25; fees to cloth merchant, $2.50; cutting the cloth, $3.75; materials for working, $5.50; sundries for working, $0; trying on of the suit, $2.75; alterations and amendments, $4.50; entering transaction in day book, $2; posting same in ledger, $2; engrossing same, $3.50; writing to the button dealer, $1.25; filling his declaration—eight sheets, $8; fees to button merchant, $9.75; removing the suit by certiorari to your residence, $2.25; writing receipt, $1.75; filling same, $12.25; service of same, $1.50; ditto, $1.50; total, $100.25."

Climate Variety in Chile.

Chile has a coast line of 2,000 miles and the breadth of the country varies from only 100 to 250 miles. The crest of the Andes marks the eastern boundary and the Pacific ocean the western. The coast chain and the principal cordillera of the Andes traverse the country longitudinally. Between them lies the central valley, the great agricultural section of the country. In the north are the arid deserts which contain the nitrates. In the south is the Chiloe archipelago and the mainland where the rains are frequent and constant. The long stretch of coast and the variations due to the mountain chains afford every variety of climate, but the greater section of the country may be said to have a temperate climate. The mineral resources are the natural wealth which furnish the major part of the purchasing power.—New York Sun.

DUTIES OF THE BOARD OF REVIEW

Laws Defining Their Powers and Duties as a Board, Communication as Received from

MINNESOTA TAX COMMISSION

Any Taxable Property Omitted Shall be Added by the Board—Should do its Work Well

In a communication from the Minnesota Tax Commission City Clerk Anton Mahlum has received much information bearing on the duties of the board of review passing on tax matters, which is to be given the chairman and members of the board for their guidance.

The board of review meets the fourth Monday of June at the office of the clerk to review the assessment of property in such town or district, and they shall immediately proceed to examine and see that all taxable property in their town or district has been properly placed upon the list and duly valued by the assessor. In case any property, real or personal, shall have been omitted, the board shall place it upon the list with its true value (and also its assessable value) and they shall correct the assessment so that each tract or lot of real property and each article, parcel or class of personal property shall be entered upon the assessment list at its true and full value (and assessed at the per cent of true and full value provided by law); but no assessment of the property of any person shall be raised until he has been duly notified of the intent of the board so to do.

On the application of any person feeling aggrieved, they shall review the assessment, and correct it as shall appear to them just. Any two of such officers may act at such meeting, and may adjourn from day to day until they shall finish the hearing of all cases presented. The assessor shall attend with his assessment books and papers, and note all changes and additions made by the board, and correct his work accordingly. All complaints of individuals residents of the town or district, in reference to the assessment of personal property, shall be heard and decided by the town board; but the complaints of non-residents in reference to the assessment of any property, real or personal, and of others in reference to any assessment made after the meeting of such board, shall be heard and determined by the county board of equalization.

The hearing of complaints is a duty that should of course be carefully and conscientiously performed. Not only should the board see to it this year that all taxable personal property in the district is placed on the assessment books, but it should also see that all structures and improvements, exceeding $100 in value, which have been added to real estate between the first day of May, 1914, and the first day of May of the present year, have been properly valued and assessed.

The law provides that the words "full and true value" wherever used in the statutes relating to taxation "shall mean the usual selling price at the place where the property to which the term is applied shall be at the time of assessment; being the price which could be obtained therefor at private sale, and not at forced or auction sale."

If any taxable property has been omitted from the returns the board should add it to the assessment roll.

The board is authorized to raise or lower the assessed value of any tract or lot of real estate, or any article or class of personal property, if such action is necessary in order to make the assessment comply with the percentages of assessed to true and full value.

The board should take all the time necessary to thoroughly review and equalize the assessment. The assessment of moneys and credits has never been satisfactory in many of the taxing districts of the state and the tax commission has been reluctantly obliged to order reassessments of such property in a large number of districts.

The laws of the state require that whenever it is made to appear to the tax commission that the assessment in any taxing district has not been made according to law it shall appoint a special assessor and make a reassessment of all or any part of the property in the district—the cost thereof being charged to the district.

The board of review is in many respects the most important board connected with our system of assessment and equalization because it deals with the assessment in its first or initial stage.

The fast Milton team of St. Paul will play Brainerd here on Saturday and Sunday. Their lineup includes Zenzius third base, O'Leary left field, G. Kennedy is the manager.

Kneeland has a home-run reputation, getting five of them this season. Spider Zenzius and Beutner are known in the Twin Cities as the Milton's Midgets. They are very small players, but big run getters. Bull Picha is noted for his size and is a terror with the stick.

With Alderman pitching two years ago Brainerd won from the Miltons 3 to 2 in a batting rally in the last inning. The Miltons can be depended upon to put up a good game and a large attendance should be on hand Saturday and Sunday.

Farmers clubs are particularly active throughout Minnesota this season, according to an article which appears in a current issue of the University Farm Press News.

Fast Team who Played Here Two Years Ago to Play Saturday and Sunday Series

The fast Milton team of St. Paul will play Brainerd here on Saturday and Sunday. Their lineup includes Zenzius third base, O'Leary left field, G. Peterson center field, Picha catcher, O'Neil or Novotny second base, Beutner shortstop, Kneeland right field, Grogan first base, McLaughlin, Makes, Shimon and Hodger pitchers. G. F. Kennedy is the manager.

Kneeland has a home-run reputation, getting five of them this season. Spider Zenzius and Beutner are known in the Twin Cities as the Milton's Midgits. They are very small players, but big run getters. Bull Picha is noted for his size and is a terror with the stick.

With Alderman pitching two years ago Brainerd won from the Miltons 3 to 2 in a batting rally in the last inning. The Miltons can be depended upon to put up a good game and a large attendance should be on hand Saturday and Sunday.

KLOVER LEAF FARMING CLUB

Growing Different Kinds and Strains of Grain—Pelican Club to Build a Hall

Farmers clubs are particularly active throughout Minnesota this season, according to an article which appears in a current issue of the University Farm Press News.

"If all the reports that come into the office of the agricultural extension division of the University of Minnesota could be summarized," says the article, "one would be deeply impressed with the activities of the clubs throughout the state, but such a summary is impossible in a very limited space. A few glimpses, however, will be suggestive.

"The farmers' clubs in the Bear River valley in Itasca and St. Louis counties are making an agricultural survey in an effort to secure a branch railway for the valley.

"The Farmers' Corn club of Morrison county is going to build five miles of good roads.

"The Carmel Farmers' club of Beltrami county is making a study of farm equipment. At a recent meeting models of practical farm gates were exhibited. At the succeeding meeting home-made wagon jacks were on display.

"The members of the Do-Good Farmers' club of Waseca county are joining with other farmers to raise a $500 fund to be used this summer in keeping on hand a supply of hog cholera serum.

"At the last meeting of the Hawley Farmers' club of Clay county each member responded to the roll call by naming his farm's worst weed enemy and gave his method of eradication.

The farmers' clubs around McIntosh in Polk county have organized a livestock shipping association.

"The Silver Dale Farmers' club of Koochiching county raised $67.17 at a basket social recently as a nest egg for a fund to be used in erecting a club hall. Other clubs working on club hall plans are: Lake Johanna, Ramsey county; Forbes, St. Louis county; Columbia, Polk county; Pelican, Crow Wing county; Perch Lake, Carlton county.

"Members of the Clover Leaf Farmers' club of Crow Wing county are growing different kinds and strains of grain in small plots this year to discover which are best adapted to the local soil and climatic conditions.

NEUTRAL NEWS

Altho roads in town of Garrison are not too smooth no one can complain of the dust.

The baseball game between Bay Lake and Neutral June 20th was won by the Neutralites on Neutral grounds. Until the 20th the Bay Lakers had won all but one game that they played this season. We think they were both surprised and disappointed at the outcome. However they will have another chance next Sunday on Bay Lake grounds. The score stood 8 to 6 in favor of Neutral.

After many unavoidable delays Miss Marie Anderson reached home a week ago today, having just finished the term in St. Cloud Normal school. She hopes to teach next fall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Love and daughter, Gladys, were at Neutral to see the ball game Sunday.

B. Chillean and sister, Mrs. Aug. Soderlund, went to Brainerd Monday to meet Miss Hilma Chillean who is returning from a year's stay in Chicago.

The Worst is Over Saloons are Open

(By United Press)

Atlanta, Georgia, June 22—The authorities this afternoon indicated their confidence that the worst is over and that the fear of riots and mob violence owing to the commutation of the sentence of Leo Frank to life imprisonment by allowing the saloons and drinking places to open for business.

This dispatch appeared in last night's paper in connection with the Frank murder case. Now, Mr. Voter, if saloons are a bad thing when men must keep a sober brain under the stress of an excitement; if England, Russia and France find liquor a bad thing in time of war when the very best in men are necessary, how much more necessary that we should abolish liquor that men may give their best to the pursuits of peace.

If it were something that men needed it would be quite different. This dry-wave has behind it many men who would escape the grip liquor has upon them. Try County Option for three years CROW WING COUNTY OPTION LEAGUE.

The BLACK BOX

by E. Phillips Oppenheim

Novelized from the Photo Play of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"As a Pleasure Cruise," Quest remarked, "This Excursion Seems to Be a Success."

"I want you all," he begged, "to listen very carefully to me. You will discover the application of what I am going to read when I am finished. Now, if you please."

"This," he began, "is the diary of a tour made by Craig and myself in northern Egypt some fourteen years ago. Here is the first entry of importance:

MONDAY—Twenty-nine miles southeast of Port Said. We have stayed for two days at a little Mongar village. I have today come to the definite conclusion that anthropoid apes were at one time denizens of this country.

TUESDAY—Both Craig and I have been a little uneasy today. These Mongars into whose encampment we have found our way, are one of the strangest and fiercest of the nomad tribes. They are descended, without a doubt, from the ancient Mongolians, who invaded this country some seven hundred years before Christ, but have preserved in a marvelous way their individuality as a race. They have the narrow eyes and the thick nose base of the pure Oriental; also much of his cunning. One of their special weaknesses seems to be the invention of the most hideous forms of torture, which they apply remorselessly to their enemies.

WEDNESDAY—This has been a wonderful day for us, chiefly owing to what I must place on record as an act of great bravery by Craig, my servant. Early this morning, a man-eating lion found his way into the encampment. The Mongars behaved like arrant cowards. They fled right and left, leaving the chief's little daughter, Feenda, at the brute's mercy. Craig, who is by no means an adept in the use of firearms, chased the animal as he was making off with the child, and, more by good luck than anything else, managed to wound it mortally. He brought the child back to the encampment just as the chief and the warriors of the tribe returned from a hunting expedition. Our position here is now absolutely secure. We are treated like gods, and, appreciating my weakness for all matters of science, the chief has today explained to me many of the secret mysteries of the tribe. Amongst other things, he has shown me a wonderful secret poison, known only to this tribe, which they call Veedemzo. It brings almost instant death, and is exceedingly difficult to trace. The addition of sugar causes a curious condensation and resolves it almost to a white paste. The only antidote is a substance which they use here freely, and which is exactly equivalent to our camphor.

The professor closed his book. Quest promptly rang the bell.

"Some sugar," he ordered, turning to the steward.

They waited in absolute silence. The suggestion which the professor's disclosure had brought to them was stupefying, even Quest's fingers, as a moment or two later he rubbed two knobs of sugar together so that the contents should fall into the tubes of bouillon. The bouillon turned to a strange shade of gray and began slowly to thicken.

"It is Mongar poison!" the professor cried, with breaking voice.

They all looked at one another.

"Craig must be here amongst us," Quest muttered.

"And the bouillon," Laura cried, clasping Quest's arm, "the bouillon was meant for you!"

There seemed to be, somehow, among all of them, a curious indisposition to discuss this matter. Suddenly Lenora, who was sitting on the lounge underneath the porthole, put out her hand and picked up a card which was lying by his side. She glanced at it, at first, curiously. Then she shrieked.

"A message!" she cried. "A message from The Hands! Look!"

They crowded around her. In that same familiar handwriting was scrawled across the face of the card these few words:

To Sanford Quest:

You have escaped this time by a chance of fortune, not because your wits are keen, not because of your own shrewdness; simply because Fate willed it. It will not be for long. Underneath was the drawing of the clenched hands.

"There is no longer any doubt," Lenora said calmly. "Craig is on board. He must have been on deck a few minutes ago. It was his hand which placed this card on the porthole. . . . Listen! What's that?"

There was a scream from the deck. They all recognized Laura's voice. Harris was out of the stateroom first, but they were all on deck within ten seconds. Laura was standing with one hand clasping the rail, her hand fiercely outstretched towards the lower part of the promenade deck. Through the darkness they heard the sound of angry voices.

"What is it, Laura?" Lenora cried. She swung round upon them.

"Craig!" she cried. "Craig! I saw his face as I sat in my chair there, talking to the captain. I saw a man's white face—nothing else. He must have been leaning over the rail. He heard me call out and he disappeared."

The captain came slowly out of the shadows, limping a little, and followed by his steward, who was murmuring profuse apologies.

"Did you find him?" Laura demanded, eagerly.

"I did not," the captain replied, a little tersely. "I ran into Brown here and we both had a shake-up."

"But he was there—a second ago!" Laura cried out.

"I beg your pardon, miss," Brown ventured, "but the deck's closed at the end, as you can see, with sailcloth, and I was leaning over the rail myself when you shrieked. There wasn't anyone else near me, and no one can possibly have passed round the deck, as you can see for yourself."

"Very well, then," she said. "You people had better get a strait-waistcoat ready for me. If I didn't see Craig there, I'm going off my head."

Quest had disappeared some seconds ago. He came thoughtfully back, a little later.

"Captain," he asked, "what shall you say if I tell you that I have proof that Craig is on board?"

The captain glanced at Laura and restrained himself.

"I should probably say a great many things which I should regret afterwards," he replied, grimly.

"Sit down and we'll tell you what has happened in my room," Quest continued.

He told the story, calmly and without remark. The captain held his head.

"The ship shall be searched," the captain declared, "once more. We'll look into every crack and every cupboard."

Lenora turned away with a little shiver. It was one of her rare moments of weakness.

"You won't find him! You won't find him!" she murmured. "And I am afraid!"

Lenora grasped the rails of the steamer and glanced downwards at the great barge full of Arab sailors and merchandise. In the near background were the docks of Port Said. It was their first glimpse of eastern atmosphere and color.

"I can't tell you how happy I am," she declared to Quest, "to think that this voyage is over. Every night I have gone to bed terrified."

He smiled grimly.

"Coming on shore, any of you?" Harris inquired.

"We may when the boat moves up," Quest replied. "The professor went off on the first barge. Here he is, coming back."

A little boat had shot out from the docks, manned by a couple of Arabs. They could see the professor seated in the stern. He was poring over a small document which he held in his hand. He waved to them excitedly. "He's got news!" Quest muttered. He came straight to Quest and Lenora and gripped the former by the arm.

"Look!" he cried. "Look!"

He held out a card. Quest read it aloud:

There is not one amongst you with the wit of a Mongar child. Good-by! The Hands!

"Where did you get it?" Quest demanded.

"That's the point—the whole point!" the professor exclaimed excitedly. "He's done us! He's landed! That paper was pushed into my hand by a tall Arab, who mumbled something (To be Continued)

MOLECULES AND HEAT.

Why Hot Water Dissolves Most Substances Quicker Than Cold.

Most housewives know that sugar will dissolve far more quickly in hot water than in cold, but very few know that salt will dissolve in cold water just as quickly as when the water is boiling. In this salt is somewhat of an exception, for most substances dissolve much more easily when water is hot.

The reason for this was a mystery in the middle ages, and it is only since the modern knowledge of molecules that it could be explained.

Heat is nothing more nor less than an increase in the speed with which the molecules are revolving. This is easily seen in molasses. When very cold it will hardly flow at all, when warmed it will pour slowly, but when boiling hot it will pour in a thin stream almost as liquid as milk. In the same way boiling water is more liquid than cold water.

As dissolving a piece of sugar means that the sugar enters into the tiny spaces between the molecules of the water, the more quickly they are moving the easier it is for the sugar to get it. For, it must be remembered, you can fill a glass to a certain level, and after that put in two, three or even four lumps of sugar and the glass will be no fuller than before.

The reason for this is shown by merely thinking of the process on a large scale. Suppose a bowl were filled full of marbles. You could pour a lot of bird shot into it without making the marbles rise any higher in the bowl. The shot would be filling in all the little cracks between the marbles, and if you stirred the marbles slowly the shot would little by little find its place. That is like the sugar in cold water.

But if the marbles were being whirled around rapidly the shot would rapidly fill every place and the bowl would be full of shot. Yet the marbles would not be any higher in the bowl. Then, after all that, you could pour water into the bowl and it would get into the small spaces between the round shot, and still the marbles would not be any higher in the bowl.

It is in this way that substances which have been dissolved find their way into the liquids into which they have been dissolved.—New York American.

A Luxurious Poorhouse.

Morden college, Blackheath, is the most luxuriously equipped almshouse in existence. Admission is strictly limited to merchants who have fallen on evil times. Mere clerks are not eligible, candidates being required to prove that they have been in a large way of business for themselves. Each member of the college draws a yearly allowance of £10 and on admission receives £25 worth of furniture for his two rooms, unless he prefers to bring his own. There are well trained men servants, and to every three members one maid servant is allotted. Members must attend a certain number of chapel services and be in by 11 o'clock at night if they come in at all, but there is no other restriction on their liberty, and they can go away for weeks at a time if they choose.—London Chronicle.

Naming a City.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer we learn that the modern spelling of the name of the city is due to the error of a type manufacturer who sent to the Cleveland Herald, in 1831, a new set of type which was too "fat," as printers say. In other words, too wide to allow the heading of the paper to be spelled in the old and correct way. As the correction of the mistake was a matter of about ten weeks, so slow were the transportation facilities of those days, the printer suggested that the first "a" be left out of the name. It was done, and thus the town received a new name.

"Flowery" Names.

Many of the Chinese names are of a "flowery" character. The Chinese minister at Washington for many years was Wu Ting Fang, a name which signifies "fragrant place." The name of the minister to England at the same time was Lo Peng Lo, meaning "a rich harvest," while the name of the contemporary minister to France, Yu Keng, signified "much gold." The regular name for a little Chinese girl baby is "My thousand ounces of gold."

The Modern Life.

"It is all a matter of kindness and patience," she explained. "I never struck either of them."

Still, few children display such tact in bringing up their elders.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Chicago, June 23.—Unless the striking carpenters have accomplished arbitration by Saturday every mill, lumber yard, cement, brick, stone and other building materials yard and plant or building materials yard and plant in the Chicago district will be shut down.

This is the ultimatum announced by F. M. Craig, secretary of the building construction employers' association.

Titanic Suits in Court.

New York, June 23.—The Federal district court began a hearing to determine whether damage suits totaling $18,000,000 might be brought by claimants against the Oceanic Steam Navigation company, Limited, owners of the ill-starred Titanic, which went down at sea in April, 1912, with the loss of more than 1,600 lives.

Shouts of laughter greeted this irreverent statement, which investigation would probably show to be literally true.—London Tit-Bits.

The BLACK BOX

by E. Phillips Oppenheim

Novelized from the Photo Play of the Same Name. Produced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

"As a Pleasure Cruise," Quest remarked, "This Excursion Seems to Be a Success."

"I want you all," he begged, "to listen very carefully to me. You will discover the application of what I am going to read when I am finished. Now, if you please."

"This," he began, "is the diary of a tour made by Craig and myself in northern Egypt some fourteen years ago. Here is the first entry of importance:

MONDAY—Twenty-nine miles southeast of Port Said. We have stayed for two days at a little Mongolian village. I have today come to the definite conclusion that anthropoid apes were at one time denizens of this country.

TUESDAY—Both Craig and I have been a little uneasy today. These Mongolians into whose encampment we have found our way, are one of the strangest and fiercest of the nomad tribes. They are descended, without a doubt, from the ancient Mongolians, who invaded this country some seven hundred years before Christ, but have preserved in a marvelous way their individuality as a race. They have the narrow eyes and the thick nose base of the pure Oriental; also much of his cunning. One of their special weaknesses seems to be the invention of the most hideous forms of torture, which they apply remorselessly to their enemies.

WEDNESDAY—This has been a wonderful day for us, chiefly owing to the fact that I have placed on record as an act of great bravery by Craig, my servant. Early this morning, a man-eating lion found his way into the encampment. The Mongolians behaved like ardent cowards. They fled right and left, leaving the chief's little daughter, Feerdia, at the brute's mercy. Craig, who is by no means an adept in the use of firearms, chased the animal as he was making off with the child, and, more by good luck than anything else, managed to wound it mortally. He brought the child back to the encampment just as the chief and the warriors of the tribe returned from a hunting expedition. Our position here is now absolutely secure. We are treated like gods, and, appreciating my weakness for all matters of science, the chief has today explained to me many of the secret mysteries of the tribe. Amongst other things, he has shown me a wonderful secret poison, known only to this tribe, which they call Veedemzo. It brings about instant death, and is exceedingly difficult to trace. The addition of sugar causes a curious condensation and resolves it almost to a white paste. The only antidote is a substance which they use here freely, and which is exactly equivalent to our camphor.

The professor closed his book. Quest promptly rang the bell.

"Some sugar," he ordered, turning to the steward.

They waited in absolute silence. The suggestion which the professor's disclosure had brought to them was stupefying, even Quest's fingers, as a moment or two later he rubbed two knobs of sugar together so that the contents should fall into the tubes of bouillon, shook. The result was magical. The bouillon turned to a strange shade of gray and began slowly to thicken.

"It is Mongar poison!" the professor cried, with breaking voice.

They all looked at one another.

"Craig must be here amongst us," Quest muttered.

"And the bouillon," Laura cried, clasping Quest's arm, "the bouillon was meant for you!"

There seemed to be, somehow, amongst all of them, a curious indisposition to discuss this matter. Suddenly Lenora, who was sitting on the lounge underneath the porthole, put out her hand and picked up a card which was lying by his side. She glanced at it, at first, curiously. Then she shrieked.

"A message!" she cried. "A message from The Hands! Look!" They crowded around her. In that same familiar handwriting was scrawled across the face of the card these few words:

To Sanford Quest:

You have escaped this time by chance of fortune, not because your wits are keen, not because of your own shrewdness; simply because Fate willed it. It will not be for long. Underneath was the drawing of the clenched hands.

"There is no longer any doubt," Lenora said calmly. "Craig is on

There was a scream from the deck. They all recognized Laura's voice. Harris was out of the stateroom first, but they were all on deck within ten seconds. Laura was standing with one hand clasping the rail, her hand fiercely outstretched towards the lower part of the promenade deck. Through the darkness they heard the sound of angry voices.

"What is it, Laura?" Lenora cried. She swung round upon them. "Craig!" she cried. "Craig! I saw his face as I sat in my chair there, talking to the captain. I saw a man's white face—nothing else. He must have been leaning over the rail. He heard me call out and he disappeared."

The captain came slowly out of the shadows, limping a little, and followed by his steward, who was murmuring profuse apologies.

"Did you find him?" Laura demanded, eagerly.

"I did not," the captain replied, a little tersely. "I ran into Brown here and we both had a shake-up." "But he was there—a second ago!" Laura cried out.

"I beg your pardon, miss," Brown ventured, "but the deck's closed at the end, as you can see, with sailcloth, and I was leaning over the rail myself when you shrieked. There wasn't anyone else near me, and no one can possibly have passed round the deck, as you can see for yourself."

"Very well, then," she said, "you people had better get a strait-waistcoat ready for me. If I didn't see Craig there, I'm going off my head."

Quest had disappeared some seconds ago. He came thoughtfully back, a little later.

"Captain," he asked, "what shall you say if I tell you that I have proof that Craig is on board?" The captain glanced at Laura and restrained himself.

"I should probably say a great many things which I should regret afterwards," he replied, grimly.

"Sit down and we'll tell you what has happened in my room," Quest continued.

He told the story, calmly and without remark. The captain held his head.

"The ship shall be searched," the captain declared, "once more. We'll look into every crack and every cupboard."

Lenora turned away with a little shiver. It was one of her rare moments of weakness.

"You won't find him! You won't find him!" she murmured. "And I am afraid!"

Lenora grasped the rails of the steamer and glanced downwards at the great barge full of Arab sailors and merchandise. In the near background were the docks of Port Said. It was their first glimpse of eastern atmosphere and color.

"I can't tell you how happy I am," she declared to Quest, "to think that this voyage is over. Every night I have gone to bed terrified."

He smiled grimly. "Coming on shore, any of you?" Harris inquired.

"We may when the boat moves up," Quest replied. "The professor went off on the first barge. Here he is, coming back."

A little boat had shot out from the docks, manned by a couple of Arabs. They could see the professor seated in the stern. He was poring over a small document which he held in his hand. He waved to them excitedly.

"He's got news!" Quest muttered. He came straight to Quest and Lenora and gripped the former by the arm.

"Look!" he cried. "Look!"

He held out a card. Quest read it aloud: "There is not one amongst you with the wit of a Mongar child. Good-bye! The Hands!" "Where did you get it?" Quest demanded.

"That's the point—the whole point!" the professor exclaimed excitedly. "He's done us! He's landed! That paper was pushed into my hand by a tall Arab, who mumbled something" (To be Continued)

MOLECULES AND HEAT.

Why Hot Water Dissolves Most Substances Quicker Than Cold. Most housewives know that sugar will dissolve far more quickly in hot water than in cold, but very few know that salt will dissolve in cold water just as quickly as when the water is boiling. In this salt is somewhat of an exception, for most substances dissolve much more easily when water is hot.

The reason for this was a mystery in the middle ages, and it is only since the modern knowledge of molecules that it could be explained.

Heat is nothing more nor less than an increase in the speed with which the molecules are revolving. This is easily seen in molasses. When very cold it will hardly flow at all, when warmed it will pour slowly, but when boiling hot it will pour in a thin stream almost as liquid as milk. In the same way boiling water is more liquid than cold water.

As dissolving a piece of sugar means that the sugar enters into the tiny spaces between the molecules of the water, the more quickly they are moving the easier it is for the sugar to get it. For, it must be remembered, you can fill a glass to a certain level, and after that put in two, three or even four lumps of sugar and the glass will be no fuller than before.

The reason for this is shown by merely thinking of the process on a large scale. Suppose a bowl were filled full of marbles. You could pour a lot of bird shot into it without making the marbles rise any higher in the bowl. The shot would be filling in all the little cracks between the marbles, and if you stirred the marbles slowly the shot would little by little find its place. That is like the sugar in cold water.

But if the marbles were being whirled around rapidly the shot would rapidly fill every place and the bowl would be full of shot. Yet the marbles would not be any higher in the bowl. Then, after all that, you could pour water into the bowl and it would get into the small spaces between the round shot, and still the marbles would not be any higher in the bowl.

It is in this way that substances which have been dissolved find their way into the liquids into which they have been dissolved.—New York American.

A Luxurious Poorhouse.

Morden college, Blackheath, is the most luxuriously equipped almshouse in existence. Admission is strictly limited to merchants who have fallen on evil times. Mere clerks are not eligible, candidates being required to prove that they have been in a large way of business for themselves. Each member of the college draws a yearly allowance of £110 and on admission receives £25 worth of furniture for his two rooms, unless he prefers to bring his own. There are well trained men servants, and to every three members one maid servant is allotted. Members must attend a certain number of chapters and be in by 11 o'clock at night if they come in at all, but there is no other restriction on their liberty, and they can go away for weeks at a time if they choose.—London Chronicle.

Naming a City.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer We learn that the modern spelling of the name of the city is due to the error of a type manufacturer who sent to the Cleveland Herald, in 1831, a new set of type which was too "fat," as printers say. In other words, too wide to allow the heading of the paper to be spelled in the old and correct way. As the correction of the mistake was a matter of about ten weeks, so slow were the transportation facilities of those days, the printer suggested that the first "a" be left out of the name. It was done, and thus the town received a new name.

"Flowery" Names.

Many of the Chinese names are of a "flowery" character. The Chinese minister at Washington for many years was Wu Ting Fang, a name which signifies "fragrant place." The name of the minister to England at the same time was Lo Feng Lo, meaning "a rich harvest," while the name of the contemporary minister to France, Yu Keng, signified "much gold." The regular name for a little Chinese girl baby is "My thousand ounces of gold."

The Modern Life.

Meipomene had just put her parents to bed.

"It is all a matter of kindness and patience," she explained. "I never struck either of them."

Still, few children display such tact in bringing up their elders.—Philadelphia Ledger.

ULTIMATUM TO CARPENTERS

Yards and Plants to Close Unless Arbitration Is Reached.

Chicago, June 23.—Unless the striking carpenters have accomplished arbitration by Saturday every mill, lumber yard, cement, brick, stone and other building materials yard and plant in the Chicago district will be shut down.

This is the ultimatum announced by F. M. Craig, secretary of the building construction employers' association.

The carpenters have been on strike for more than a month.

Police Battle With Convicts.

Panama, June 23.—Panama police have had a number of fierce encounters with the eleven convicts who recently escaped from the penitentiary at Santiago, in the province of Veragua, after killing a police lieutenant and one guard and dangerously wounding five other guards. The men took refuge in the jungles and were heavily armed with rifles and revolvers.

Titanic Suits in Court.

New York, June 23.—The Federal district court began a hearing to determine whether damage suits totaling $18,000,000 might be brought by claimants against the Oceanic Steam Navigation company, limited, owners of the ill-starred Titanic, which went down at sea in April, 1912, with the loss of more than 1,600 lives.
